

The MWR Briefing

Wednesday 28th September 2016

12:00 - 13:00 Registration & Networking Lunch

13:00 - 17:00 Presentations

17:00 - 20:00 Drinks Reception & Networking

One Moorgate Place, Chartered
Accountants Hall, 1 Moorgate Pl,
London, EC2R 6EA

+

MWR is pleased to invite you to the MWR briefing where we will bring you presentations on our latest research and thinking.

Recent data sources such as Mandiant m-trends, Verizon DBIR, similar vendor reports and our own privileged view gained from working with many organisations in a myriad of industries, have offered fascinating insights into the current global threat landscape.

It is abundantly clear that advanced attackers and malware are evading preventative controls as well as traditional detection methods, and as such there is an ever-increasing need for organisations to predict, prevent, detect and respond to these attacks.

This briefing, featuring some of MWR's leading offensive and defensive specialists, will comprise of discussions providing a unique view from the "coal face" on how attackers are achieving such success and how you can respond appropriately.

Presentations include:

Teach a Man to Hunt

Attack detection – an evolution from traditional monitoring to active threat hunting

+ Adam Bateman

Balancing Prevention and Detection

How preventive and detective controls can interact to thwart modern attacks

+ Ed Parsons

One Template to Rule 'em All

Office Templates and their relevance to today's threat landscape

+ Kostas Lintovois

The Path of Least Resistance

Walk a path to critical business assets using graph theory

+ Ben Campbell & Stuart Morgan

Honeypots and Deceptive Operations

Can you catch more spies with honey(pots)?

+ Dr. David Chismon

Register now at mwr.to/themwrbriefing
Enquiries Tel +44(0)1256 300920

Registration: Whilst this is an invitation-only event and we do not charge for attendance, there is an expected high demand for places – we would therefore recommend registering as soon as possible.